Work on 9-Foot Channel on Ouachita Is Advancing

While the projected navigation schedule for Red River comes no farther north than Shreveport there is a noticeable improvement in the program to give Ouachita River a 9-foot channel all the way up to Camden, and eventually Arkadelphia.

The original Ouachita channel was dredged to a 6-foot depth to Camden, but since the Mississippi-Warrior River navigation complex has a 9-foot depth river freight consigned to Monroe, La., and Camden suffered an operating handicap. Freight leaving the main channel on the Mississippi had either to be reloaded in shallow-draft barges for the Ouachita run, or placed in shallow-draft barges directly from ocean freighters at the New Orleans terminal.

Because of the reduced capacity of the shallow-draft boats transport on the Ouachita was a costly and inefficient business. It was like trying to operate a narrow-gauge railroad connecting with the standard-gauge main line.

After years of agitation the Ouachita now has a 9-foot channel in its immediate future. H.K. Thatcher, executive vice-president of the Ouachita River Valley Association, Camden, reported in a bulletin received here Wednesday reported as follows:

"The water and related land resources development projects, sponsored by the Ouachita River Valley Association, have moved slowly-but steadily. The 9-ft. navigation projects in the Ouachita River, both in Louisiana and in Arkansas, have been hampered for the past 12 years by the problem of securing and deeding to the Government the large acreage of overflow and construction lands required. The major part of this problem was in Arkansas. The whole was solved by the Congress authorizing the purchase of 65,000 acres for National Wildlife Refuge Area in Arkansas, and an additional 12,000 acres in Louisiana for the same general purpose.

"It can now be reported that all Congressional authorizations for construction and funding have been passed. All required assurances are now in order, and sufficient appropriations have been voted to allow the projects to proceed in Fiscal Year 1972.

"The DeGray Dam and Water Supply Reservoir on the Caddo River, a right bank tributary of the Ouachita River, will be completed and ready for service in the calendar year of 1972. Arkadelphia, Arkansas, will spearhead a dedication ceremony in the early part of June. Senator John L. McClellan will be one of the principal figures at the dedication. Senator Allen Ellender, Senator J.W. Fulbright, Congressman David Pryor and Congressman Otto Passman, and others, will also participate. President Nixon will be invited. Lieutenant General F.L. Clark, Chief of Engineers, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, and other high ranking officials of the Corps will be present. The Ouachita River Valley Association will play a prominent part in the dedication of this project and urges all of its members and friends to give it their full support."

Coleman to Hold News Conference

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Jack Coleman of McGehee, declared candidate for 4th District congressman, notified news media here Wednesday that he would hold a news conference today in Little Rock about a meeting he said he had had with federal highway officials. Coleman said the news conference would be at 4:15 p.m. today at the Little Rock municipal airport where he is to arrive en route from Washington, D.C. The declared candidate said he had received a commitment for a highway construction project in Arkansas.

City Exploring a New Water Supply Source

The City of Hope increased its water supply last year by some 2½ million gallons per day and the Water and Light Commission has already ordered an engineering study that could possibly increase the present supply of water by 2½ times.

During 1971 the City plus federal assistance spent $750,000 on a water project that produced five deep wells in the Oakhaven area along with some 12 miles of 12" water lines and a pump station that brings the water into Hope.

Old wells inside the City now produce about 1½ million gallons of water per day. The Oakhaven system is currently producing about 2½ million gallons. This four million gallons is sufficient, according to City Officials, to supply all current and projected demands of industry in this area, business and residential needs.

The current study ordered by the W&L Commission is for development of surface water supply in connection with the Soil Conservation Service which is planning a Flood Control Project that will furnish 10 million gallons a day. The SCS has scheduled an engineering survey on the project to begin this month.

The project is known as the Terre Rouge Creek Watershed program which has been in the mill for nearly a dozen years. If the project could get off the ground this year it is estimated it would take from two to three years to complete. It would also mean about a 2,000 acre lake as a supply reservoir for Hope. Naturally all federal assistance possible will be sought.

Terre-Rouge Creek heads about two miles north of Washington, in Hempstead County and outlets into the Little Missouri River in Section 5-

Twp 11 S-R 20 W in Nevada County about 11 miles east of Prescott.

Floods covering more than 50 percent of the floodplain occur one or more times each year with lesser floods occurring on an average of three or four times a year. Flood damage to growing crops on an annual basis is a handicap to agricultural production. Farm operators in the flood-plain area have attempted to protect their land and improvements with levees, but these structures have been ineffective. Sediment and scour damage is common throughout the area.

According to an investigation made by the Arkansas Soil and Water Conservation Commission in May 1969, the following works of improvement are needed:

Nine floodwater retarding structures, one of these being a multi-purpose structure to provide an adequate and dependable water supply for the City of Hope, and channel work consisting of about three miles on Pate Creek, 10 miles on Terre-Rouge Creek and five miles on Little Terre-Rouge Creek and tributaries. The structural measures will be supplemented by land treatment measures for erosion control, water conservation and soil improvement.

Major benefits would accrue to the approximately 13,200 acres of flood-plain upstream from the mouth of Little Terre-Rouge Creek with Terre-Rouge Creek. This area is almost 100 percent woodland.

The Terre-Rouge Creek Watershed Project will be co-sponsored by the Hempstead County Soil and Water Conservation District and by the Nevada County Conservation District.

Pay Board Debates Aerospace Cutback

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pay Board decided today not to recommend any guideline for labor and management to follow in reducing a rejected 12 per cent aerospace pay raise, a spokesman said.

He said the board voted 12 to 0 to table a motion that would have recommended a guideline. It was not immediately known what the proposed resolution contained, or who besides Chairman George H. Boldt abstained from the vote.

It appeared that the action left the two unions involved free to renegotiate the vetoed wage package without the appearance of having terms dictated to it by the public and management members of the board, who reportedly wanted the raise trimmed to roughly 8 per cent.

The unions said Wednesday they didn't want the board's advice. However, it is apparent that the unions have a pretty good idea of what the board will accept, since the Pay Board has debated the matter for three days.

The public and business members of the board overruled labor members Wednesday in ordering the panel's first wage veto, a rejection of a 51-cent hourly pay raise in the first year of contracts covering more than 100,000 workers at five aerospace firms. The unions said 34 cents of the raise was cost-of-living catch-up due them under 1968 agreements.

U.S. Steel Cuts Prices

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Steel industry sources, pointing to a price cut by U.S. Steel Corp. on large tonnage items, say a price war has broken out in the industry.

U.S. Steel announced price cuts Wednesday ranging from $5 to $8 a ton on hot and cold rolled sheet products, used in making autos and appliances and added a spectacular slash of $25 a ton on merchant quality steel bars, a structural product.

U.S. Steel, the nation's top producer, said there was no cost justification for making the cuts. The firm said it was doing so to meet prices established by the competition.

Industry sources say Inland Steel Co. of Chicago, the nation's seventh largest producer, made the first move. Although an Inland spokesman would say only his company made price adjustments on Monday, industry sources said Inland offered large customers quantity discounts from published prices on hot and cold rolled steel. There was no public announcement.

When Bethlehem Steel, the second-largest producer, became aware of the move, sources said it cut its affected sheet prices across the board. A Bethlehem spokesman would not confirm nor deny the report.

U.S. Steel's action, however, was announced formally.

Apparently referring to the Inland action, the company said it would not publish a pricing formula of advantage only to the largest users, nor did it provide before-and-after prices of the products affected by the roll-back.

2 Americans Killed Last Week in War Viet Cong Warned Against New Military Adventures

SAIGON (AP) — Two Americans were reported killed in action last week, the U.S. Command announced today, and both were fliers shot down over Laos.

The command's weekly casualty summary said another 50 Americans were reported wounded, including one in the Laotian air campaign. And the total number of Americans missing or captured increased by six to 1,491, apparently as a result of the intense air activity last week in Laos and North Vietnam.

It was the 13th straight week that fewer than 10 combat deaths were reported. The previous week one U.S. combat death was reported.

The South Vietnamese command in its weekly summary reported 205 government troops killed, a drop of more than 25 per cent from the total the week before, and 514 wounded, compared to 633 the previous week.

The allied commands claimed 674 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong killed, nearly 300 less than the week before.

It was the first week in nearly seven years that no Americans were reported killed in ground combat. However, daily communiques last week reported two Americans killed in helicopters that were shot down and another in an armored personnel carrier that hit a mine. Because of complexities in the reporting system, these three deaths were not included in the weekly summary.

The deaths in Laos brought to 301 the number of U.S. airmen reported killed in Laotian operations since March 1970.

The U.S. Command also reported five Americans died from nonhostile causes last week.

The allied commands now have reported these total casualties for the war:

American—45,629 killed in action, 302,446 wounded, 10,028 dead from nonhostile causes.

PARIS (AP) — The United States warned North Vietnam and the Viet Cong today against new "military adventures" they are believed to be planning in South Vietnam.

The warning was sounded by the U.S. peace negotiator, William J. Porter, as the long-deadlocked peace talks resumed following a four-week recess. The acrimonious meeting left the two sides as far apart as ever.

"I wish to caution you that the military efforts you seem to be planning on the western border of South Vietnam and elsewhere in Indochina are not likely to achieve anything to your permanent advantage and will probably entail the loss of many more lives," Porter told the 139th session of the talks.

"I urge you to reflect before you engage in the military adventures you apparently are planning."

North Vietnam's Xuan Thuy and the Viet Cong's Nguyen Van Tien vigorously denounced President Nixon's television interview Sunday. They reiterated that the American prisoners in Communist hands would not be released until the United States has committed itself to total and unconditional withdrawal and repudiated its obligations to Saigon.

Tien flatly denied Nixon's news conference assertion that the United States sought in vain to obtain assurances that Hanoi would release its prisoners in return for total American withdrawal.

Nixon said such a deal had been "under discussion at various times in the Paris talks but... the North Vietnamese rejected it."

Porter complained about the "erratic and highly unsatisfactory" movement of mail to and from the prisoners and said it violated the North Vietnamese authorities' own commitments.

Porter also asked the Communist delegates to indicate where the families of Americans captured by the Viet Cong can address their letters. Letters recently received from 18 men held by the Viet Cong were the first signs of life from several hundred Americans missing in South Vietnam, some of them for more than five years.

Porter reiterated that the United States and the Saigon government remain ready to call a general cease-fire throughout Vietnam and to open talks for organizing internationally supervised elections in South Vietnam. North Vietnam and the Viet Cong have repeatedly rejected both proposals.

Attacks on N. Vietnam

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. planes made two attacks on North Vietnamese radar installations Wednesday, and American B52 bombers dropped nearly 300 tons of bombs in the southern half of the demilitarized zone in the heaviest attack ever made there, the U.S. Command announced today.

The command announced earlier that an F105 Wild Weasel fighter was believed to have destroyed a radar site 45 miles north of the DMZ in an attack Wednesday morning. Today it reported "an attack by a second Wild Weasel Wednesday afternoon on a radar station 64 miles southwest of Hanoi and 22 miles east of the Laotian border."

It was the closest attack to Hanoi reported since the unsuccessful commando raid in November 1970 on the Son Tay prisoner of war camp 23 miles west of the North Vietnamese capital. The two attacks Wednesday were also the first so-called protective reaction strikes into North Vietnam of 1972; 108 were reported in 1971 and 21 in 1970.

Both fighters were escorting U.S. bombers on missions in northern Laos. The U.S. Command said they intercepted North Vietnamese radar signals and crossed the border to attack the sites. Results of the second strike were not known, the command said.

No damage was reported to the American planes.

The B52 attack in the southern half of the DMZ continued an accelerated bombing campaign against North Vietnamese positions threatening Saigon forces in the northern quarter of South Vietnam. Fighting erupted just below the DMZ on Tuesday for the first time in weeks, and three South Vietnamese were killed.

Space Shuttle Site

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon's support of a scaled-down space shuttle with a throwaway booster rocket has made Cape Kennedy the clear favorite to become the initial launch site for this rocket plane of the future.

The cape, from which man first went to the moon, always has been a favorite, even though its premier position has been threatened by proposed launch sites in California, New Mexico, Utah and Oklahoma.

But there seems little argument after Nixon's announcement Wednesday in San Clemente, Calif., that he backs a six-year, $5.5-billion program to develop a shuttle system that will only be half reusable, instead of fully reusable as once envisioned by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The orbital section, carrying as many as 12 persons, will be designed to fly 100 or more times into space, but the booster section will be a rocket that will be dumped into the ocean, just as Apollo's Saturn 5 rockets sink beneath the sea after hoisting men on lunar journeys.

The biggest plus for the cape is that it is the only place in the country which has pads and facilities for rockets large enough to launch the shuttle, which will be the size of a Boeing 707 jetliner.

If the launch site were placed elsewhere, not only would launch pads have to be built, but millions of dollars of communications and tracking equipment would have to be installed.

Another factor favoring the cape is that the spent boosters can drop in the Atlantic away from inhabited areas.

And the cape has water access on which to ship huge rocket sections from manufacturing points in the United States and Western Europe, which is expected to contribute to development of the shuttle.

Why was any site other than Cape Kennedy considered?

Originally NASA envisioned a completely reusable shuttle, with both the orbiter and booster sections flying with manned planes, to be refurbished and flown again.

This design might have worked against the cape as a launch site because of the surrounding Atlantic Ocean. Some felt that an error in landing by either craft might send it into the sea, where corrosive salt water would make it unusable.

Why the throwaway booster? NASA determined that development of a fully reusable shuttle would cost more than $10 billion and the space agency budget would have to peak at more than $7 billion in the mid-1970s.

Knowing Congress would not accept such a high figure above the present $3.2 billion space budget, NASA settled on the throwaway booster.

Officials said the $5.5 billion is the least that could be okayed and still have the shuttle flying on tests with astronauts by the target date of 1978.

New Leak Probe Aims to Curb Secret Stamp

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Armed Services Committee is undertaking an inquiry aimed at curbing overuse of the secrecy stamp and closing what the chairman calls the "open season" on government secrets.

Without mentioning either columnist Jack Anderson's disclosure of Nixon administration strategy papers on the Indian-Pakistani war or the Pentagon papers, the Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., announced Wednesday a major inquiry by his committee into proper classification and protection of national security secrets.

In the meantime, Anderson reported that Kenneth B. Keating, U.S. ambassador to India, had, in a secret cablegram, challenged Nixon administration statements made to justify U.S. policy toward India and Pakistan.

Hebert indicated that targets of his committee probe, shortly after Congress returns Jan. 18, will include both unnecessary secrecy and "the callous disregard by some individuals" who publicly expose sensitive information.

While federal officials often abuse their right to classify, he said, this does not give any individual "the right to unilaterally ignore any classification action and thereby break existing law."

"Recent events clearly indicate that despite existing law we now have an open season on all classified information in government," Hebert said. "Our national security requirements therefore demand early and prompt legislative action to correct these apparent deficiencies in the law."

The corrective law, he said, should "strike a proper balance between the right of the public to know and the indispensable ability of our government to function." Columnist Anderson contended Wednesday the only security involved in the papers he release was the job security of officials responsible for what he called the blunder of America's siding with Pakistan during the Indian-Pakistani war.

Anderson said the papers showed the White House lied.

The purported minutes of three White House strategy meetings quoted presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger as saying Dec. 5 that President Nixon "wants to tilt in favor of Pakistan"—before dying publicly Dec. 7 that the administration was anti-India.

The administration has kept silent about Anderson's release of the material. But government agents reportedly are trying to determine who turned over the papers to Anderson.

Hebert said subjects of the House probe will include adequacy of the National Security Act and merits of his own proposed bill to create a national commission on classification and protection of national security information.

Meanwhile, Anderson's agency, Bell-McClure Newspapers Syndicate, released Wednesday night another column carrying what Anderson said was a paraphrased version of a secret cablegram sent by Ambassador Keating to Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Keating was quoted as being "very interested to read" a U.S. Information Agency account of a White House briefing by Kissinger. Anderson said the cablegram was dated Dec. 8.

"While he (Keating) appreciated the tactical necessity of justifying the administration's position, he felt constrained to state that elements of this particular story do not coincide with his knowledge of the events of the past eight months," according to the column.

Anderson wrote that Keating questioned a U.S. statement that a $115-million relief program for East Pakistan was initiated "at the specific request of the Indian government."

According to Anderson, the ambassador referred Rogers to a Keating report on a conversation with Indian Foreign Minister Swaran Singh. The Indian government was said to be "reluctant to see the relief program started prior to a political settlement" because it might "bail out" Gen. Agha Mohammad Yahya Khan, then-president of Pakistan.

Kiwanis Club Speaker

CALVIN CALDWELL

At Tuesday's meeting of Hope Kiwanis Club Kiwanian Calvin Hamilton presented Calvin Caldwell, Hempstead County Extension Agent, as the guest speaker.

In his opening remarks Mr. Caldwell stated that his agency now has a new name. It is now called the Cooperative Extension Service, a name that more nearly describes its functions. The Cooperative Extension Service is funded by the County, the State, and some Federal Funds cleared through the University of Arkansas.

Mr. Caldwell stated that two million acres of farm lands are being taken out of agricultural production each year. "The people left in agriculture don't farm like they used to," said Mr. Caldwell. "In fact they couldn't survive under methods used by our grandfathers."

A series of color slides were shown by Mr. Caldwell, covering many of the facets of the operation of the Cooperative Extension Service, some of which one might not expect to find in such a program but all of which can assist one in achieving a better living. Some of the subjects mentioned were Beef Clinics, Soy Bean Marketing Assistance, Tax Sessions, Landscape Planning Short Courses, House Planning with actual plans free for the asking, Handling Facilities for better handling cattle, Home Economist Programs, Defensive Driving Short Courses, and work with our youth in the 4-H and other youth programs.

Mr. Caldwell also showed slides presenting some of the problems being faced in today's living and explained some of the steps being taken by his agency to assist in solving the problems. Jack Kimbrell of New Mexico was the guest of Kiwanian Jim Hart and Dr. Roger Lewis of Magnolia accompanied Kiwanian Dale Franks.

Bird Roost War to Begin Here Monday

The City of Hope, in cooperation with the State Division of Wildlife Services and the Cooperative Extension Service of the University of Arkansas will attempt to move an estimated 1-1/2 million birds from a roost located south of Shover Road, between Edgewood Street and the Green Acres subdivision, beginning Monday, January 10.

As the birds come in to roost Monday evening, they will be greeted with a lot of noise from exploding "bird bombs", fire crackers and several loud speakers that will broadcast alarm and distress calls of the bird species involved. They will not kill or injure the birds, simply create a noise that, hopefully, will cause the birds to move out of the area. It is estimated that, since the roost is so well established, it will take 4 or 5 days to move them out of the

Gets 4 Months in Cross Trial

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Because an Alabama soldier refused to tuck a small silver cross inside his shirt, he has been sentenced to four months in the stockade.

Pvt. James Stephen Clegghorn, 22, of Huntsville, Ala., was convicted Wednesday of disobeying orders that the cross, which he wore on a chain around his neck, be removed or put inside his uniform shirt.

After the verdict, Clegghorn kissed the cross, which he wore throughout a day-long court-martial at Ft. Sam Houston.

He said he wears the cross over his uniform as a form of "conscientious resistance."

Clegghorn told newsmen that the cross was given to him by a Catholic Christian community in Dallas.

Immediate Withdrawal Favored by Muskie

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says if he is elected president he will seek "as close to an immediate withdrawal from Vietnam as possible." But former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy says he doubts the sincerity of the Maine senator's position.

Both are contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Muskie told newsmen and several hundred supporters in Washington Wednesday he hopes President Nixon will have withdrawn U.S. forces from South Vietnam before the election, but if the President hasn't, Muskie is pledged he will set a deadline and get out.

McCarthy, a Minnesotan who unsuccessfully sought the presidential nomination in 1968 when Muskie was the vice presidential nominee, said the Maine senator "was the most active representative of Johnson administration policy at the 1968 convention."

"We will talk about where people stood in 1968 and what they have done or not done since that time," McCarthy, a peace candidate four years ago, told a Washington news conference.

Muskie said he now believes "our involvement in Vietnam was wrong."

"I did not always believe that to be the case," he added. "I believe it now."

In his first public appearance since he formally declared his candidacy Tuesday night, Muskie said he plans to enter the first eight of the 23 state presidential primaries and may enter them all.

In other political developments Wednesday: Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty's supporters in Concord, N.H., filed the mayor's petitions and paid his $500 filing fee to put his name on the New Hampshire ballot.

President Nixon's supporters filed his name Monday, and Reps. Paul N. McCloskey of California and John M. Ashbrook of Ohio are expected to challenge him today in the Republican primary.

McCloskey, campaigning in Claremont, N.H., said he plans to introduce legislation designed to force elderly federal officials, including FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover "to retire at age 70 or lose all benefits."

In Florida, where the second presidential primary will be held March 14, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington staked out a position as the staunchest supporter of the military among the Democratic hopefuls.

"I say thank God for the military-industrial complex," Jackson told a receptive audience at a Gulf Coast fish fry in the heart of the state's military base complex. "Thank God for the military, and thank God for a free industry that can provide the weapons systems we need to remain strong."

Woman Held in Slaying

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — A 19-year-old woman was in custody today following a series of gun battles in which her male companion and two state troopers were fatally wounded.

Marilyn Dobrolenski of Toledo, Ohio, was turned over to Pennsylvania authorities after waiving extradition in Centerville, Md.

Her companion, Irving P. Hogg, 39, also of Toledo, and two Delaware state troopers, Ronald L. Carey, 29, and David C. Yarrington, 24, were killed during a three-state chase that began following a motel holdup near Wilmington, Del.

Shortly after Wednesday's holdup troopers summoned to the scene trailed a car to another motel just inside the Pennsylvania line.

Carey was killed during a shootout with a couple there and Yarrington, who suffered a head wound, died early today following surgery at a Wilmington hospital.

Hogg was shot to death after Maryland state police spotted the couple near Church Hill, Md.

Police said they found a 12-gauge shotgun inside an automobile abandoned by the couple. Also recovered was a .45-caliber automatic pistol and a .22-caliber sawed-off rifle.

The couple had eluded police and FBI agents following an-

Helen and Sue Bottel

The Generation Rap

To Hell in a Handbasket?

Dear Rap:

Why don't you two start facing things as they are? I've been reading your columns and it seems to me that neither of you can see a thing wrong with today's teenagers. No matter what they do, you seem to have a defense. Well, not me! In my opinion they're a bunch of drug-taking, booze-guzzling, shoplifting, immoral rioters.

The world is headed for damnation because these brats you both dote on are going to hell in a handbasket. Teen marriage, pre-marital sex, venereal disease, divorce, crime, illegitimacies have sky-rocketed to all-time highs. Can you deny any of this?—IRATE ELDER

Helen's Views:

Dear Irate:

Granted, we are living in an imperfect world, but don't blame everything on teens. Let's take booze, for instance. Our youngsters didn't invent that. If you'll do a little homework, you'll find that back in the 1800s the per capita consumption of alcohol was higher than it is today—and those old boys took their liquor straight—not diluted with pop and what-have-you.

Neither are crime and rioting new-fangled ideas dreamed up by today's youth. Think back to Prohibition and Depression days. Remember the gang wars, the bombs, the IWW and Wobly riots? Yes, violence, modern style, is horrible and it's made even more frightening because we see it as it happens, on television. But it isn't all caused by teens.

In fact, today's responsible youth has organized for constructive action. Have you heard of "The Silent Majority," a campus group which discourages rioting—with great success in the past two years—and which works for better university programs through compromise? Have you heard of "Teens Against Drugs" and the "Non-Smokers Club"? And then there's LUV—"Let Us Vote"—whose members are more hep to good politics than most older voters.

No, IRATE, all teens are NOT going to hell in a handbasket. We can be mighty proud of most of them.

Sue Says:

Before you blame us Under-21s for all the misfortunes of our messed-up society, take a close look at the fine print below those headlines. Who provides the drugs and liquor to teenagers? Who supplies campus pusher, or for that matter, leads the rioters. Don't kid yourself, "adults" have the biggest hand in these activities, and get the biggest cut of the cake.

Sure, the kids shouldn't cave in, but many haven't very good examples at home: from members of YOUR generation! Maybe you don't know about the thousands of teens who volunteer as teachers' aides in projects for the underprivileged; about those who work in hospitals, nursing homes and later in Vista and the Peace Corps. They aren't after money or recognition, and often get none of either.

Nearly all my fellow students have part or fulltime jobs in addition to courses that might give their parents mental fatigue. They don't have time for the "sex and sin" you describe in your letter, Mr. I. Less than 10 per cent take that route.

I don't question your right to speak up or worry. We're worried too, for your generation has left us a lot of unfinished projects (which we give you credit for starting): integration, world peace, an end to poverty and discrimination. But please: get the facts straight! Look back in history and recognize this isn't the worst of all possible times. And youth is no worse than it ever was.

(Got a problem? Or a subject for discussion, two-generation style? Direct your questions to either Sue or Helen Bottel—or both, if you want a combination mother-daughter answer.)

Some Wage Earners Needn't File Returns

By RAY DE CRANE

Many wage earners, particularly retired persons who have a part-time job and students who have an after-school or summertime job, have been relieved of the requirement for filing income tax returns.

Under current tax laws you must file a return if you are: SINGLE and have an income of $1,700 or more and you are under 65; $2,300 or more if you are 65 or older. Remember that your age is determined as of last Jan. 1. The same dollar requirements apply to an unmarried head of a household, or a surviving widow or widower with a dependent child. Under new tax law changes, certain married persons living apart may file separate returns this year and claim status of a single person.

MARRIED, entitled to file a joint return, and the combined income of both spouses is $2,300 or more if both are under 65; $2,900 if one is at least 65; $3,500 if both are 65 or older. These requirements for married persons apply only if they lived together at the end of the taxable year, file jointly and neither is the dependent of another person.

Persons with a net income of $400 or more from self-employment must also file a return. They might not be liable for an income tax, but they could owe a Social Security tax on their self-employment income.

While not required to file a return, any one in these categories with less than the

Any match-point duplicate player worth his salt would have no trouble getting himself set with today's hand. He would see that three no-trump was a very normal contract and decide that every other South player would be there.

He would count nine easy tricks and see that his best play for an overtrick would be to lead a heart to dummy's ace and take the club finesse.

He would probably note the possibility of losing his cinch game in case West held all four clubs but would know that this was a five per cent chance only while the chance that East would hold two or three clubs to the king would be much greater. The actual chance is 45 per cent but he might not know that.

In any case he would reason that failure to take the club finesse was likely to cost him a trick while using up dummy's one entry to take it would be most unlikely to cost him a trick.

A good rubber bridge player would make the hand easily. He would count to nine and lay down his ace of clubs in order to be sure of reaching that magic number. After all, rubber bridge players should always take the best play for the contract and only go after overtricks after the contract is safe.

Hair Styles on the Upsweep

By ANN HENCKEN

AP Fashion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Spring hair styles start with a simple pageboy, but they end at a convoluted upsweep.

That "Don't touch me, I've just been to the beauty parlor" look, is back again. It includes such marvels as clots of hair bunched in back, twisted braids, buns, curls, ponytails, pins and ribbons—often all on the same arrangement.

However, women can choose a duck tail cut or a tapered style instead. Or she can go Chinese with a full length queue from Stan Hagler.

Stylists from across the country gathered at a beauty brunch Wednesday at the New York Couture Council's press week, and they see these trends:

The Afro is outpaced by the smaller, softer head.

Long, straight hair of the 1960s is still being chopped off.

The best solution is a neat angled cut. Sides are shorter, swooping down to a longer back. This is often worn with bangs.

Many stylists are tired of the layered look. It's become an ordinary street fashion and must be replaced.

Short cuts are off the neck, partly to clear the way for backless dresses.

Upswept styles are coming back.

So is the ducktail. Remember that in the 1950s?

"More complicated, that's the word," says Pierre Hambr of New York City. "Hair styles will be more worked out, without being jazzed up."

Complicated is not the word for some arrangements. The word is confused. Styles range from a three-clump number of "teeny teeny" curls to three fat high-rise, buns in a row.

However, there is hope. It starts with the pageboy, from Mr. Andre of New York, or the bowl cut page boy, from Betty Bagwell of Columbia, S.C.

These are stylists who give a no-teased look—just lots of shiny loose clean hair, but well shaped and never far below the shoulders.

Agricultural Extension Service Plan No. 607301, available at your County Extension Office.

This small, frame cottage represents a practical minimum of both space and cost. It is intended primarily for a young farm couple. Later, when the farm business is further developed, it can be used as a tenant house. This cottage plan will also meet the needs of many individuals planning to build small cottages for a second home on lake property in resort areas. The cottage is also adequate for retired couples who do not wish to maintain a large house.

Special space-saving features include an undercounter water heater, a pullout bed, a wall desk, a wall-type heater with a prefabricated metal or asbestos-cement chimney and accordion-type closet doors.

The large porches and generous window areas make the cottage particularly suitable for warm climates or a summer home.

The living area contains 468 square feet of floor space and the porch and storage area contain 267 square feet.

Complete working drawings of this plan No. 607301 can be obtained, free of charge, by contacting the Cooperative Extension Office.

Rock-Throwing Case Is Closed

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The books have been closed with a suspended sentence for the last of five defendants in a rock-throwing incident in 1970 when President Nixon was campaigning here.

Four others were sentenced earlier on misdemeanor charges.

On Wednesday Municipal Court Judge William J. Harris suspended sentence for Ronald J. Cosetti, 30, of Santa Clara, who had pleaded no contest to a charge of failing to obey a police order. He also was accused of jumping on the roof of a police car as a chanting crowd threw rocks and bottles at the Nixon motorcade leaving a pre-election Republican rally with Gov. Ronald Reagan and then-Sen. George Murphy. No one was injured.

Charges of malicious mischief and disturbing the peace were dropped.

NCAA Proposal Draws Wrath of Top Coaches

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association prepared to open its 66th annual convention today by thrashing out proposed restrictions on financial aid and athletic scholarships which have drawn the wrath of many of the country's top football coaches.

In a preliminary action Wednesday before the formal opening, Illinois State University was slapped with a year's probation for violating NCAA provisions governing financial aid, eligibility, recruiting and practice time.

A round-table discussion was scheduled this afternoon to discuss the proposed restrictions on financial aid, which have been recommended by a special committee and backed in principle by the policy-making

NCAA Council. After earlier evaluation of the committee's broad concepts—financial aid based on need, limiting the number of athletic scholarships, etc.—the Council, drafted special legislative proposals to incorporate these changes in the constitutions and bylaws.

However, no formal consideration can be given the amendments at the convention. Following presentations by a special panel, a vote will be held Saturday during the windup business session on whether to hold an unprecedented special convention prior to July 1 to consider adoption of the amendments.

The major proposals that actually will come up for a vote by the NCAA's 656 member institutions Saturday would significantly tighten the recruiting of prospective student-athletes.

Wednesday, the Council made a slight change in its resolution to determine if a special convention should be called to consider the financial aid recommendations. The Council said it would first introduce a resolution to consider at any special convention both legislative reorganization—separate divisions for large and small schools—as well as the financial aid proposals.

If that resolution fails, the Council said it would push for a special convention to consider reorganization only. If that, too, fails, it will propose considering financial aid only.

Illinois State's probation, which resulted from at least six violations, did not include any sanctions. This means that Illinois State's entire athletic program is subject to review by the NCAA but there is no ban on postseason competition.

Super Mex Trim for Campbell Play

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — There's a new look to the 1972 model Lee Trevino, a restyled version that's slimmer, trimmer and almost sveit.

He's still the brash and brassy guy who gave himself the label "Super Mex," but his self-applied description as "a short, fat man," no longer is apt.

"I've been working pretty hard for about three weeks now," the 1971 PGA Player of the Year said today before teeing off in the first round of the $125,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open, the traditional kickoff tournament for the long, rich pro tour.

"I started about 15 days before I came out here," Trevino said. "I've been playing and beating balls, sometimes up to a thousand, every day for two weeks. I haven't had a drink in that long ... well, a little on New Year's Eve."

"And I'm running every day, putting in that road work to get the legs in shape."

Trevino, down to about 175 pounds, was one of the favorites for the $25,000 first prize in this first event on the pro tour that offers almost $7.5 million in prize money this year.

The 31-year-old ex-Marine bolted into the front rank of the game's greatest stars last year when he won six tournaments, including that near-incredible sweep of the American, British and Canadian opens in less than a month.

He's coming into the season after a four-week layoff.

"I feel good. Real good. Strong and ready, I'm hitting it pretty good," Trevino said. "I think that layoff was good for me. I wanted the time to get ready."

In addition to Trevino, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper were the other top choices with such other standouts as George Archer, Miller Barber, Dave Eichelberger, Jerry Heard and Australian Bruce Crampton—all $100,000 winners last year. Defending champion Bob Lunn and England's Tony Jacklin are also on hand.

The final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally on CBS.

Make Plans for Olympic Games

SAPPORO, Japan (AP) — Japanese organizers of the 11th Winter Olympic Games said Thursday they are going ahead with preparations despite press reports that all skiing events may be dropped because of a dispute involving amateurism.

Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, was reported earlier to have suggested to the International Ski Federation (FIS) that Alpine and Nordic skiing events be dropped at the Sapporo Olympics Feb. 3-13, if some leading skiers are allowed to compete.

Brundage had warned all National Olympic Committees that their entire teams could be barred from Olympic competition if a single member was found to have violated IOC rules on amateurism. The FIS claimed Brundage was trying to destroy the Winter Olympic Games.

Ralston Goes to Pros

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Stanford football Coach John Ralston, who's moving to a new job as pilot of the Denver Broncos, says the pro owners now are looking more to the universities for leadership talent.

"The idea of the inbred sort of thing in professional football is changing," said Ralston, 44, after he was named Wednesday to succeed Lou Saban with the Broncos. "There's some desire on the part of pro owners to look for men who coach at universities who have the ability to communicate with athletes."

Challenger Working Hard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Heavyweight champion Joe Frazier put in about six rounds Wednesday and challenger Terry Daniels did 17 in preparation for their Jan. 15 title bout here.

Frazier started with light-heavy George E. Lee of New Orleans but less than one round was enough for the champion's manager, Yancey Durham, who figured Frazier needed more competition.

Frazier and Ray Anderson of Akron, Ohio, then went at each other for three spirited rounds to the applause of fan in the French Quarter penthouse gym.

Frazier wound up the day with two rounds against heavy-weight Mike Boswell of Youngstown, Ohio.

Daniels worked 17 rounds, four of them against Texas heavyweight Sonny Moore who continued to imitate Frazier's boring-in style.

Ronnie Wright, the challenger's trainer, said Daniels "looked 100 per cent better" after the workout than he did Tuesday.

Colonels Defeat ABA West Leader

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Kentucky Colonels are No. 1 in the East ... they also might be considered No. 1 in the West.

Kentucky, the American Basketball Association East Division leader, bolstered by Louie Dampier's 37 points, posted a 129-123 triumph Wednesday night over the Utah Stars, the ABA West leader.

The contest was knotted 28-all at the end of the first quarter but then the Colonels scrambled to a 65-59 halftime edge and maintained their advantage as Dampier poured in 14 of Kentucky's last 19 points.

In Wednesday's other ABA game, the New York Nets upended the Carolina Cougars 125-116.

Dan Issel added 31 points for the victors, with Ron Boone scoring 25 points for Utah and keeping the Stars in the game the second half.

Tom Washington, who canned 21 points and snared a season-high 21 rebounds, learned it was Nets Coach Lou Carnesecca's 47th birthday Wednesday and spread the word to the rest of the team.

The Nets then made their coach's birthday a happy one by defeating the Cougars for the fourth time in five meetings this season.

Rick Barry paced New York with 32 points and Bill Melchioni added 29.

Larry Miller, who notched 29 points for the losers, fueled a late Carolina rally that narrowed the gap to 109-107 but the Nets pulled away in the closing moments.

Redskins Allen Is Coach of Year

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not that George Allen isn't grateful. It's just that George Allen is ... well, George Allen.

"I'd gladly trade the honor for a victory over San Francisco," Allen said Wednesday when told he had been named the National Football League Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

He referred to his Washington Redskins' 24-20 loss to the San Francisco 49ers in a National Conference playoff game.

The loss ended Washington's chances of going to the Super Bowl following their best season since 1945 when they won the world championship.

The 49-year-old Allen moved to Washington a year ago from the Los Angeles Rams. He then began a stream of trades that built the Redskins from an also-ran to a contender.

"The future is now," Allen proclaimed on Jan. 7, 1971. "There is nothing like winning," he said frequently.

Allen's first acquisition as coach-vice president of the Redskins was Billy Kilmer, who was to back up starting quarterback Sonny Jurgensen. When Jurgensen was injured in pre-season, Kilmer took over and led the team to victories in its first five games.

The big trade was with the Rams, a massive deal that saw Allen obtain what turned out to be the nucleus of his "Over-the-Hill Gang" defensive unit: linebackers Myron Pottios and Jack Pardee and defensive tackle Diron Talbert, plus three other players and a draft choice.

To the Rams went seven draft picks. Allen, who posted a 49-17-4 record in five years with Los Angeles, had to overcome the injuries of Jurgensen and wide receiver Charley Taylor, who missed the last eight games.

His selection as Coach of the Year, Allen said, was due to "a fine job by our coaching staff and total effort by all of our Redskins players."

Allen polled 33 of the 60 votes cast by a nationwide panel of sports writers and sports broadcasters, easily outdistancing Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins and Ed Khayat of the Philadelphia Eagles, who tied for second with eight votes apiece.

John Mazur of the New England Patriots received three votes, Bud Grant of Minnesota and Tommy Prothro of Los Angeles got two apiece and Don McCafferty of Baltimore, Tom Landry of Dallas, J. D. Roberts of New Orleans and Nick Skorich of Cleveland received one vote each.

When Alabama's Crimson Tide marched 97 yards to score against the University of Houston in a tough game, Houston coach Bill Yoeman was asked how he felt about it. "Actually," he said, "I would just as soon see a nine-yard drive. It's much easier on the equipment."

Maryland in Victory Over N. Carolina

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State hit a cold spell Wednesday night that accomplished two things.

It kept the Wolfpack without a field goal for nine solid minutes and it allowed 12th-ranked Maryland to erase a 21-13 deficit and salvage an 83-70 college basketball victory in the only contest involving a team in the Associated Press Top 20.

North Carolina State built up its lead until 11:15 remained in the first half. Maryland then outnerved the Wolfpack 24-2 en route to a 39-31 halftime edge.

Sophomore Tom McMillen paced the winners with 22 points while North Carolina State's star sophomore, 7-foot-4 Tom Buleson, scored 18 points.

Clemson's torrid shooting in the second half ended a close game as the Tigers downed Georgia Tech 66-57 as Dave Angel led the victors with 21 points.

Gene Doyle snapped a tie with a driving layup with 56 seconds remaining as Holy Cross nipped Syracuse 99-93 and Richie O'Connor hit Duke's individual season high of 26 points as his team dumped Virginia Tech 83-73.

Furman raced past The Citadel 101-86 behind a fast break and rigid man-to-man defense and John Somegyi canned 38 points as Rutgers buried Pittsburgh 92-76.

Tom Kozelko posted a career high 39 points as Toledo edged Western Michigan 88-84 and Roy Thomas' clutch three-point play carried Baylor over Oklahoma State 68-64.

Sophomore Richard Fuqua, the nation's fifth-ranked scorer, poured in 42 points as Oral Roberts University crushed St. Francis, Pa., 125-104 and Eastern Illinois swamped Virginia Military 111-71.

Redskins Allen Is Coach of Year

By BOB GREENE
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not that George Allen isn't grateful. It's just that George Allen is ... well, George Allen.

"I'd gladly trade the honor for a victory over San Francisco," Allen said Wednesday when told he had been named the National Football League Coach of the Year by The Associated Press.

He referred to his Washington Redskins' 24-20 loss to the San Francisco 49ers in a National Conference playoff game.

The loss ended Washington's chances of going to the Super Bowl following their best season since 1945 when they won the world championship.

The 49-year-old Allen moved to Washington a year ago from the Los Angeles Rams. He then began a stream of trades that built the Redskins from an also-ran to a contender.

"The future is now," Allen proclaimed on Jan. 7, 1971. "There is nothing like winning," he said frequently.

Allen's first acquisition as coach-vice president of the Redskins was Billy Kilmer, who was to back up starting quarterback Sonny Jurgensen. When Jurgensen was injured in pre-season, Kilmer took over and led the team to victories in its first five games.

The big trade was with the Rams, a massive deal that saw Allen obtain what turned out to be the nucleus of his "Over-the-Hill Gang" defensive unit: linebackers Myron Pottios and Jack Pardee and defensive tackle Diron Talbert, plus three other players and a draft choice.

The 1971 Least, Worst, Bottom All-Mediocre Dismal Awards

By RALPH NOVAK

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Just about everybody connected with sports, except perhaps the Billings Mustangs' batboy, has already received some kind of Most, Best, Top, All-Star or Super award for what he did during 1971. Let us, then, take a look at some of the lesser awards, those that are more accurately characterized as representing the Least, Worst, Bottom, All-Mediocre or Dismal qualities of athletics:

The Norman Vincent Peale Power of Positive Thinking Award: to Chuck Tanner, manager of the Chicago White Sox, who, when the White Sox obtained Richie Allen in a trade, said, "Richie is a wonderful person and a good friend as well."

The Doris Day Goody Two Shoes Award: to all those NFL players who appeared on the antidrug spots telecast during football games. It is good to know that Gene Washington, Mike Lucci, John Brodie and all the rest of them have never taken any pep pills or pain-killers, or alcoholic drinks or anything nasty like that.

The Grantland Rice "It Isn't Whether You Win or Lose" Award: to Woody Hayes, Ohio State's football coach. As we all know, the main purpose of college sports is to build character and Hayes must have decided that the day his Buckeyes lost to Michigan this year was the time to give a character lesson in righteous indignation, since he went into the greatest tantrum of the post-Khrushchev era when an official's call went against his team. That, kids, is what is known as learning to accept defeat gracefully.

The Pat O'Brien Win One for the Governor Award: to Ronald Reagan, who said in a speech to the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame that in football, "It's a hot, clean hatred for an opponent during a game. It's not a mean hatred."

Those of you interested in seeing a cold, dirty, mean hatred will have to watch the political gridiron in California, or perhaps "Death Valley Days."

The Walter Winchell Good Taste in Journalism Award: to Dick Young of the New York Daily News, who made this comment in the Sporting News in discussing Elgin Baylor's new career as a TV sportscaster—"If he has the same involuntary head-feint he had with the Lakers, Elgin will need two mikes." Imagine the hilarious one-liners we would get if Young ever covered a wheelchair basketball game.

The Foster Castleman Forgotten Man Award: to Roy Smalley. How fleeting is fame!

The Nathan Detroit Oldest Established Permanent Floating Crap Game in East Rutherford, N.J. Award: to Wellington Mara, beloved owner of the lame duck New York Giants. The only thing left to say is that the way things are going with the Giants, they better not schedule any exhibition games with Hackensack High School.

The Wellington Mara "Thanks, Judge" Award: to New Jersey Superior Court Judge Morris Pashman, who ruled that for the state to build a $200 million sports complex to house the Giants, among other things, is constitutional. In his decision, he said: "The exposure of more people to professional sport is of overriding public importance and for the public welfare." Ladies and gentlemen, this man could be the next commissioner of baseball.

The Howard Cosell Good Taste in Journalism Award: to Howard Cosell, for his response when broadcasting partner Don Meredith, who struggled through many exasperating seasons as a Dallas Cowboy said near the end of one of this season's Monday night TV games—"Well, this is a tense situation with only a couple of minutes left

2 Tied for NHL Leading Scorer

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Does defending champion Phil Esposito of Boston hold sole possession of the National Hockey League scoring lead today? Or does he share the top spot with Jean Ratelle of New York?

Officially, the two centers have 66 points apiece.

But Ratelle, the Rangers' classy veteran, said Wednesday night that he should have been credited with only four points—five—in New York's 9-1 rout over St. Louis. If so, he would have only 65 points for the season.

Esposito, who set records with 76 goals and 152 points last season, collected his 31st goal and 35th assist Wednesday night as the Bruins blanked Toronto 2-0, extending their unbeaten streak to 10 games.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Montreal whipped Vancouver 6-4, Minnesota stopped Detroit 4-2, Pittsburgh and Chicago tied 3-3, and California trounced Los Angeles 6-2.

Ratelle, who scored three goals in a game for the second time this season, raising his goal total to 25, and received a legitimate assist on Rod Gilbert's 25th goal, apparently was mistakenly given an assist on Vic Hadfield's 26th tally.

Both Ratelle and Hadfield thought the disputed assist belonged to Bobby Rousseau. "Bobby shot it and (Pierre) Jarry passed the puck to me," said Hadfield.

Asked if his battle with Esposito for the scoring title was foremost on his mind, Ratelle said: "No. I've got to worry about myself and my line, not what he's doing."

What Esposito did was set up defenseman Bobby Orr's 18th goal of the season in the first period and fire in an insurance goal in the second period as the Bruins shackled Toronto and remained one point behind first-place New York in the East Division. Boston goalie Ed Johnston stopped 29 Maple Leaf shots in registering his second shutout of the season.

Defenseman Pierre Bouchard scored twice and had one assist, and Frank Mahovlich broke a 2-2 tie in the third period with his 21st goal as Montreal trimmed Vancouver and stretched its home ice unbeaten string to 17 games. Former Canadian Dave Balon tallied twice for the Canucks.

Bill Goldsworthy's two goals and Jude Drouin's one goal and three assists helped Minnesota beat Detroit and end the Red Wings' four-game winning streak.

Bobby Hull's 28th goal of the season, midway through the third period, capped a two-goal Chicago rally and gave the Black Hawks their tie with Pittsburgh. Jean Pronovost netted two of the Penguins' goals.

Defenseman Carol Vadnais blasted in two goals and assisted on two others, leading California's romp over Los Angeles. Left winger Gary Jarrett also scored twice for the Golden Seals.

defines the difference between being a community and just a place." Wait a minute, ladies and gentlemen; maybe HE will be the next commissioner of baseball.

The William Shakespeare What's in a Name Award: to Lew Alcindor/Kareem Abdul Jabbar. If you were that big and that good, you could call yourself anything you wanted, too.

The Ronald Reagan Hot, Clean Hatred Award: to Mike Curtis of the Baltimore Colts. When a fan ran on the field and picked up the football during a nationally televised game, Curtis, a prime physical specimen and wearing all kinds of protective gear, gave one helluva hot, clean, cheap shot to the poor misguided fan after sneaking up on him and seemed puppy-proud of his accomplishment. That's what makes America great.

Governor Aids Cowboys' Game

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — In an attempt to offset President Nixon's assistance to the Miami Dolphins, Gov. Preston Smith has given the Dallas Cowboys a super secret play they conceivably would use if the clock showed one second and they trailed, 90-0.

Nixon told Dolphin coach Don Shula to let split end Paul Warfield do the obvious: run a deep slant over the middle and catch a pass.

It is a play Warfield used to kill the Cowboys many times when he was with the Cleveland Browns.

Smith decided Wednesday he would send Cowboy coach Tom Landry this play:

Quarterback Roger Staubach hands off to Calvin Hill going to the right. Hill hands off to flanker Lance Alworth coming from the right. Alworth hands off to Danny Reeves, who was lined up to the left of Hill and first takes a couple of steps forward before reversing himself and going right. Reeves hits Bobby Hayes on a fly pattern to deep left.

Smith says he and Landry resemble each other in that each has been called colorless. The governor labeled his play "The Razzle Dazzle Colorful Special."

If it was any gaudier, it would blind.

But Smith is serious, as was demonstrated when an aide showed the play to a newsmen for only a few seconds before withdrawing it.

If Reeves, instead of passing to Hayes, handed off to Staubach again for a scramble, the play undoubtedly would set a new National Football League record for time consumed.

Politicians have been known to climb aboard a story that carries widespread interest, such as the Super Bowl in New Orleans Jan. 16 between the Cowboys and the Dolphins. City councilmen could be next.

Dubious Distinction Hal Greer of the Philadelphia 76ers is closing in on Dolph Schayes' all-time NBA record for most personal fouls committed in a career. Schayes was whistled for 3,667 infractions while Greer started the current season with 3,504.

Potent Celtics The Boston Celtics set the NBA record for most points scored in one game when they ran up 173 points against the old Minneapolis Lakers in February, 1959. The record for most points by both teams is 316, achieved twice, in March, 1962, when Philadelphia beat New York, 169-147 and in March, 1970, when Cincinnati beat San Diego, 165-151.

Eau Claire, 1st in College Poll

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Wisconsin-Eau Claire, which beat Kentucky State last week for the first time in three meetings, replaced the loser this week at the top of The Associated Press college-division basketball poll.

The Blugolds, which had lost only four of 64 games before last week's showdown in their holiday tournament, dumped Kentucky State 101-81 to avenge defeats in their 1970 tourney and the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics tournament the previous season.

"We did it the way it should be done, beating the top-ranked team," Eau Claire coach Ken Anderson said.

Thirteen first-place votes and 370 points were given to Eau Claire by a panel of sports writers and broadcasters, while Kentucky State received four first-place votes and 298 points.

The team, led by 6-foot-10 senior Mike Ratliff's average of 22 points and Frank Schade's average of 21, remained undefeated in 10 games, while Kentucky State's record dropped to 4-1.

Eau Claire is seeking a third consecutive championship of the nine-college Wisconsin State University Conference, with essentially the same personnel it used to win the first two and advance to the NAIA post-season tournament both seasons.

Tennessee State won two more games to remain undefeated and move up from fifth place to third, while Louisiana Tech stayed unbeaten and received two first-place votes but slipped one position to fourth.

Evansville fell from fourth to fifth after dropping a 90-89 decision to Utah State and declining to a 6-3 record.

Cheyenne State advanced two spots to sixth after winning the PNC Colleges Invitational. Stephen Austin's victory in the Granite City Classic advanced it two spots to No. 8.

Two idle teams, Akron and Eastern Illinois, fell—Akron from sixth to seventh and Eastern Illinois from seventh to ninth. Assumption lost to Brown 83-74 and went down from ninth to 10th.

Baylor Leads in S.W. Conference

At the end of this week's battles involving Southwest Conference basketball teams, the Baylor Bears will still have the best intersectional record, no matter what happens between now and then.

Baylor began the week with the best record, an 8-2 mark, against non-conference foes as it and other SWC teams prepare for conference openers next week.

Then, last night in Stillwater, Okla., the Bears came up with victory No. 9 on a three-point play by Roy Thomas with 2:36 remaining.

That gave the Bears a 66-64 lead which they never relinquished. An uncontested Bear layup at the buzzer made the final score 66-64. Thomas led the Bears with 23 points.

Even if the Bears lose their other contest this week against Oklahoma City, their record will still be better than either Texas or Houston.

Houston encountered its fourth loss Monday night against Dayton.

Texas only plays once this week in attempting to improve its 5-3 record, so Baylor will have more wins at week's end than the Longhorns, should the Longhorns win and Baylor lose.

Houston plays again tonight, hosting the University of Colorado. In the only other contest involving a conference team, Arkansas State is at Texas Tech.

U.S. Settlers Seek Stability Down Under

By TOM TIEDE

WEE WAH, N.S.W., Australia—(NEA)—There was a brief moment in this country's history when officials feared the lure of America might raid the population and never allow the nation to get past the suckling stage of development.

That was in 1849, when gold was discovered in California and all roads led to the hills of instant riches. A Melbourne newspaper of the time warned its readers not to exchange the security of Australia for a "feverish dream" 7,000 miles away. Government leaders debated ways, some illegal, to keep citizens home. But before the year was out at least 65 vessels carrying 2,500 starry-eyed Aussies left the continent for a new life in the United States.

The drain, however, was short-lived. In 1851, some Digger discovered gold right here among the kangaroos—and the migration flow not only stopped but reversed itself. The exiting Australians came back, and they were followed by thousands of Americans, also starry-eyed, dreaming of a new life of their own.

Today the Aussie gold fields have piddled out, but the trend they started has not. Americans are continuing to migrate to this country in relatively small but steadily increasing numbers. Nearly 4,000 U.S. citizens settle here every year, and in the last 25 years more than 70,000 Americans have moved to the land down under.

Why? Why not? says one-time Californian Paul Kahl, 54. Ten years ago he was a farmer trying to scratch out a hand-to-mouth existence on a few hundred acres of California cropland. His taxes were going up $10-$20 an acre a year. The cost of his machinery was rising out of the question. "And I just got tired of trying to beat my head against a wall, worrying and working, just making the ends meet."

Kahl left California for Australia in 1961 with a wife, six kids and a partner. They settled on some acreage here in the relatively fertile Namoi River Valley, 450 miles northwest of Sydney. And they started to plant a seed called cotton.

"They had some cotton here before we came," says Kahl, "but they were growing it with World War II methods. We brought in some new ideas and new ways, and I suppose we've done pretty well." Indeed, so well that 150 other American farmers have settled with Kahl here, hundreds of Australians have joined the new crop industry, and now this area is the richest cotton country in this part of the world.

Not all American migrants, naturally, have done so well here as Paul Kahl. And, actually, many of them haven't cared to. According to the Australian Department of Immigration, most U.S. settlers aren't coming here seeking great new horizons. They are running away from, not toward, social challenge and competition. Says an observer: "The Americans are fairly well educated and skilled when compared to immigrants from other nations, but they don't seem to be hoping to catch any tigers by the tail. I think most of them are just looking for peace and quiet."

Unfortunately, many of the U.S. settlers are looking for their stability in the wrong places. The great majority of them settle in Australia's urban centers (only a few thousand have taken up residence in the wide-open, vastly promising Aussie boondocks). And although the cities are comfortable, familiar and convenient, they are not much different from back home. Thus the fellow who moves here to escape growth problems in America finds himself squarely amidst growth problems in Australia. Crime, pollution and value priorities are as hotly heated

Search on for Plane Down in Peru Jungle

By WILLIAM HEATH
Associated Press Writer

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A military search party, dropped by helicopter deep in the Peruvian jungle, hoped to reach the wreckage today of the turbo-prop airliner that crashed Christmas Eve with 92 persons aboard.

The only known survivor of the crash, 17-year-old Juliane Koepcke, reached civilization Tuesday after 10 days wandering through swamps and tropical rain forests.

The 12-man search team was dropped about 3 miles from the crash site late Wednesday, but rain and rough terrain forced them to camp for the night.

Clyde Peters, an American pilot for a Seventh Day Adventist mission, parachuted into the crash area Wednesday, but search coordinators said there was no word whether he found any survivors.

The wreckage of the Peruvian airliner was spotted by a plane Wednesday in the jungle about 520 miles northeast of Peru.

Jorge Torres, the pilot, reported that he did not see any survivors near the wreckage. He said the airliner's fuselage was split in two.

Miss Koepcke was reunited with her father, German-born ornithologist Hans Koepcke, and was resting under sedation at a hospital operated by the Summer Linguistics Institute, a U.S. missionary group, at Yarinacocha.

Describing the crash to a nurse who first treated her, Juliane said, "We were flying over the immense green forest when I saw that the right side of the plane was burning."

"We weren't very high. The plane was moving strangely and all the passengers looked very frightened. Suddenly I felt myself in the air and I lost consciousness. When I woke up I was on the ground strapped to my seat. My foot was cut and my body hurt all over."

She said that after freeing herself from her seat, "I started to walk and after a few steps I could see two or three bodies. I don't remember how many there were, but they didn't move."

She had been traveling from Lima to Pucallpa with her mother, Dr. Maria Koepcke, also an ornithologist. The other passengers included five Americans connected with the Summer Linguistics Institute.

Malvern Seeks New City Plan
MALVERN, Ark. (AP)—Petitions being circulated here seek a special election on whether Malvern shall adopt the city manager form of government.

A group called the Concerned Citizens for Better City Government is circulating the petitions. A spokesman said 700 signatures of qualified voters were needed to bring about a special election. The city has the mayor-aldermanic form of government.

Funds Finance Survey, Study

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Legislative Joint Auditing Committee reported Wednesday that in the last six years $14,388,775 was disbursed from the state treasury to finance surveys, studies and professional fees.

Sen. Virgil T. Fletcher of Benton, committee chairman, called for the report after disclosure that four current or former state officials had held stock in Interlock, Inc., a consulting firm that has obtained in the last two years state contracts totaling $600,000.

Fletcher said some studies probably had resulted in some benefit to the state, but he added that he believed that "a lot of that money was not well spent and a considerable amount of it could be considered a waste of taxpayers' dollars."

The senator said he would ask the Legislative Council to review the results of studies, and, if possible, learn the status of studies in progress at this time.

Legislative Auditor Orvel M. Johnson said the disbursements covered in the report included $3,344,445 in 1971, $2,656,448 in 1970, $1,935,832 in 1969, $2,700,199 in 1968, $2,109,531 in 1967, $1,544,318 in 1966.

U of A, SSC Get Aid for Program
WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Science Foundation has awarded a $36,279 grant to Southern State College and a $29,340 grant to the University of Arkansas-Fayetteville for development of programs to teach disadvantaged pupils.

Each institution is to cooperate with schools in their area in developing the programs.

Auto Sales Last Year Hit Record

DETROIT (AP) — For the first time in the auto industry's history, sales in the United States topped the 10 million mark last year. The 1971 record is due partly to a late year buying surge brought on by the wage-price freeze and repeal of the excise tax.

The final tally for the year, counting imported and domestic cars, was 10,155,411, topping the 9.66 million record set in 1968.

Last year's total sales figure, for the four major U.S. automakers was 8,676,294, still nearly 100,000 cars short of 1965's record.

But, the final total for 1971 represents a 22 per cent jump over the 1970 count when an economic recession coupled with a 67-day strike against General Motors Corp. to produce the worst sales of recent years.

Even though imported car sales set a record, their percentage share of the total 1971 market remained about the same as last year's—14.6 per cent. Major importers, including the Big Three automakers, sold 1,479,117 cars, beating the record of 1,228,402 set the previous year.

The sales picture for the imports was very strong at the beginning of the year and at one time held over 16 per cent of the market. But sales late in the year were hampered by the recently revoked 10 per cent import surcharge and dock strikes.

General Motors, recovering from the 1970 strike, led the industry in gains. GM sold 4,653,894 cars in 1971, beating its all-time 1965 record—by 77 cars. GM sales were up 42 per cent from 1970.

U.S., Japan Trying to Patch Diplomacy Rift

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon and Japan's Prime Minister Eisaku Sato buckle down to hard negotiations today after a bit of informal pre-summit diplomacy by Secretary of the Treasury John B. Connally.

Sato, who arrived in Southern California Wednesday, has his first face-to-face talk with Nixon in the President's Western White House office in the afternoon.

Connally jumped the gun a bit, paying a social call on his Japanese counterpart, Finance Minister Mitsu Mizuta, Wednesday afternoon.

The Treasury chief took wife Nellie along when he saw Mizuta in the Japanese official's resort hotel suite in Newport Beach.

The heavy economic overtones of the two-day summit of Nixon and Sato were further underscored by a Connally appearance at the President's seaside home for dinner Wednesday evening.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren emphasized that "there are obviously trade matters to be discussed" by Nixon and Sato.

Such topics will figure prominently in separate sessions to be held between Connally and Mizuta and between Secretary of Commerce Maurice Stans and Kakuei Tanaka, Japan's minister of international trade and industry.

The Japanese have been aggrieved since Nixon surprised the 70-year-old Sato last summer by arranging a trip to Communist China and imposing a temporary 10 per cent surcharge on imports.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Sato was not given advance word of the China trip because the United States and mainland China agreed to make a simultaneous announcement and "we knew that if we told others that this was happening that it would leak."

He said Japan has a free system and a very active press "and we felt any possibility of a leak would endanger the whole trip." He said he felt "the Japanese understand that now."

May Ask for Special Session
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Gov. Dale Bumpers said Wednesday he had met Tuesday night at the executive mansion with a group of persons to discuss the possibility of a special legislative session.

Asked about the meeting at a news conference, Bumpers said, "We're working on a number of things that would be considered if a special session is called."

He said he was operating on the assumption that a special session would be held so he would be prepared for one if it becomes necessary. He declined as usual, however, to say that he believed one would be necessary.

At the meeting were some legislators, department heads and advisers to the governor.

Down-the-Road Dugan

Roy "Down-the-Road Dugan" Arling is a quiet, 70-year-old goldminer from Georgetown, Calif.—who admits that the "lust for gold" which brought the Forty-Niners to California is the motive force of his own never-ending search through the same Mother Lode Country. He was given his nickname in the old days, by friends who decided he needed a monicker like those used by the colorful goldminers of the past.

After 50 years of searching, the elderly bachelor's pace has slowed down a bit now. But the desire for one last, big strike keeps him going on his lonely way, traveling around in a dusty old pickup truck, always accompanied by his two dogs.

This Week's PICTURE SHOW by AP photographer Walt Zeboski.

Goldminer Roy Arling, who has spent 50 years searching for gold in the Mother Lode Country.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — ABC closed out three of its television series in succession Wednesday night—all involving important film stars.

First came "The Smith Family," a pleasant enough family-type affair. Its greatest asset was Henry Fonda playing a calm, wise police sergeant. Its fatal weakness was an attempt to mix the sergeant's police work and his home life—loving wife and three kids.

In the final episode, Sgt. Smith was pursuing a jewel thief when the burglar's girl friend attempted to get the detective off the case by claiming he had tried to assault her. The rest of the half hour was divided between the sergeant wrapping up the case and the effects on the family when its head was under a well-publicized cloud.

It has not been a bad series, just one that never quite established an identity. Then came the windup of "Shirley's World," which in spite of the presence of Shirley MacLaine was from debut to the last broadcast a very poor, ill-conceived series.

A lot of it was shot on location—from Japan to the English countryside—but scenery does not make a comedy series, particularly when the comedy does not come off and the characters are as unreal as paper dolls.

In the show's swan song, Shirley was on vacation from her unlikely job as star reporter-photographer of an unlikely magazine. She spent it riding with her boss in an automobile race in Wales. For laughs there was riding over lumpy roads, getting lost and getting stuck in muddy cow pastures.

The whole project will quickly be forgotten by everybody except Miss MacLaine. "The Man and the City," the third dropout, did not deserve its fate. Anthony Quinn gave a strong and appealing performance as the concerned mayor of a Southwestern community. The story lines were intelligent, the production values good. It might have had a chance had it not been preceded by "Shirley's World," and had tough entertainment competition from the other networks.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB Raw Carrots Help Clear Up Acne

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Remember that article you wrote about carrots helping a problem face. Well, I tried your idea and it worked. My face has cleared up so much that I couldn't even tell I had acne. I am 12 years old and in the seventh grade.

Dear Reader—Thanks for your report. I have had a few other letters from readers who have stated that eating fresh carrots, without scraping them, has helped their complexion problems. The original suggestion came from a reader who stated she had cured many people with this simple method. It may be that carrots help only people who have complexion problems of a particular type, possibly related to a deficiency in vitamin A.

If any more readers have tried eating carrots for bad complexion, I'd like to hear what results they have had. If enough people have tried this to provide meaningful information on its value, I'll report the results in the column later. Or do you have a better suggestion for complexion problems that has worked for you?

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am not able to drink milk for calcium deficiency and have been advised that there are side effects to calcium tablets and one has to be checked for them. What are the side effects and how are they checked?

Dear Reader—I have heard a lot of comments about problems in taking calcium tablets. Most of them are unfounded. After all, a quart of milk contains about the maximum amount of calcium most healthy people teresting enough—huge quantities of drugs were being stolen from the city hospital, a scandal was exposed and an investigation of corruption started. The windup, however, was on the melodramatic side: The wife of the paraplegic head of the hospital was being blackmailed by a former lover to help him steal supplies.

In soccer, the only player who can touch the ball with his hands is the goalkeeper, within a certain area.

ple need and calcium in milk seldom causes trouble.

If you have a medical problem that leads to retention of calcium or increased levels of calcium in the blood because of a problem in bone metabolism, then calcium could aggravate the problem. There is indeed such a thing as too much calcium in the blood, but unless you have a significant medical problem this won't happen to you.

People taking digitalis for their heart need to be careful about taking excess calcium. The calcium may increase the strength of the digitalis action and cause trouble.

About the only problem is failure to absorb the calcium from the digestive tract. This, too, usually occurs only with certain diseases and with some calcium tablets from a lack of acid in the stomach. But for most people the usual dosage of calcium, by mouth, either as calcium carbonate or calcium gluconate has no significant side effects. One of these should be taken regularly if you don't get the equivalent of 1.2 grams of calcium from your diet daily, the amount in a quart of milk.

Off-Screen Plots Surround Filming Of 'The Godfather'

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — "The Godfather" was a huge best seller as a book and probably will be a blockbuster of a movie when it is released next spring. It's a story of the inner workings of the Mafia, but the off-screen shenanigans of the Mafia and some others with muscle interested in the film make another unbelievable story.

Most of the controversy formed around the figure of Johnny Fontaine, one of author Mario Puzo's most interesting creations, a pop singer, hugely successful, who was virtually a Mafia puppet.

When the book was published and, later, when it was sold to Paramount for a movie, there were repercussions about Johnny Fontaine. Frank Sinatra thought Puzo was writing about him, and he didn't like it. Simultaneously, other Italian singers went after the part vigorously.

Al Martino ultimately was cast, and he went through months of threats and worry and lost $100,000 in canceled engagements and had to borrow another $100,000 before he finally signed the contract.

What is particularly intriguing about this whole web is that there are those who believe the film's producers didn't have the last word on who would play Johnny—the Mafia did.

It was singer Phyllis McGuire who told Martino that he ought to read the book, that it contained a character he should play. When Martino read it, he must have had a feeling of familiarity.

He had been the Mafia route himself.

Insiders have long known his story. In 1952, Martino's contract was sold to an organization in New York. This was done, the story goes, without Martino's knowledge and apparently the singer didn't like the set-up. He told his new managers to get lost.

They caught up to him at a club in New Jersey and beat him senseless. To solidify their hold over him, they forced him to sign an IOU for $100,000.

"I signed," Martino was quoted as saying, "because it was better than dying."

When he got out of the hospital, he went to Europe and wasn't seen again in the United States for seven years. He finally returned after Albert Anastasia, the Mafia family leader in New York, was dead. Nobody who knew the story thought this was a coincidence.

He could work again, but there was still that $100,000 note outstanding. People who know the facts say that Martino went to Philadelphia and there contacted one of the leading Mafiosi, a man who is currently out of circulation. Somehow the note was forgotten. Martino never paid a cent.

He began a comeback, singing in the organization's own spots in New York and New Jersey, for whatever they chose to pay him. Then he hit it lucky with a couple of records—"I Can't Get You Out of My Heart" and "Darling, I Love You" and, in '62, he had a big hit with "I Love You Because." He was back on top again.

It seems clear that when he read "The Godfather," he didn't think—as most people did—that Johnny Fontaine was Sinatra. He must have thought only of himself and his own history.

It explains why he went after the part so strongly. He obviously wanted to clear his own conscience. If he could play the part, and tell it like it was with him, maybe some good would have come out of all his problems and those seven lost years.

There was one scene in the book which must have hit home with special intensity. Johnny Fontaine walks into the office of the Don—the head of the Mafia family—and pleads that he must have a chance to work.

That scene was right out of Martino's own experience, when he went to that Mafioso in Philadelphia and pleaded for a chance to work and to have that $100,000 debt canceled.

So Martino decided he wanted to play Johnny Fontaine. He wasn't alone in the quest. But he had something going for him—he knew the right people to ask.

ball, place in well-greased bowl and turn over several times to grease on all sides. Cover and place in a warm place. Let rise about 50 minutes or until doubled in bulk. Punch down. Shape dough between the hands to form two rolls, then cut each roll into 12 pieces; shape pieces into balls about 1 inch in diameter.

Mix applesauce with raisins, sugar and cinnamon to make a thick filling. Dip or roll balls of dough in salad oil or melted butter just enough to moisten. Make a layer of 12 balls in a greased loaf pan, 10x5x3 inches; spread with about half the applesauce filling. Use remaining dough balls and applesauce filling to make a third and fourth layer. Let rise in warm place about 40 minutes. Bake in 350-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes. When done, let stand in pan about 5 minutes, loosen sides and turn out on rack to cool. To serve loaf warm, use a fork to pull off 2 or 3 sections per serving. The loaf slices nicely when cold.

Cooking for the Gourmet Who Has an Ulcer

Duodenal or peptic ulcers plague more than 10 million men, women and children in the United States.

Few American women cook celery, but the adventurous one who cooks for the ulcer dieter should try this recipe. Celery, when cooked, is nonacid and has a plus-alkaline factor.

CELERY CYBELE

- 1 bunch young celery
- Salt
- 1 vegetable bouillon cube
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 tablespoon butter and cut off leaves. Cut celery lengthwise through heart, making 4 pieces. Cut in half, if necessary, to fit into a shallow casserole that has a cover. Arrange celery in bottom of casserole and sprinkle with salt. Dissolve bouillon cube in boiling water, and add only enough bouillon to cover celery. Dot with butter. Cover, and bake in 375-degree oven for one hour. Makes 2 to 4 servings.

SALMON SOUFFLE

- 2 cans (7 1/4 ounces each) salmon in water pack
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs

3 eggs, separated

Drain the fish and separate into flakes, being sure all bones and skin are removed. Mix fish with salt and lemon juice. Put the milk and bread crumbs into the top of a double boiler, and heat until well-blended. Beat the egg yolks well, then beat the egg whites until stiff. Add the fish to the milk and bread crumb mixture, then add the egg yolks, but do not overheat. Fold the egg whites into the mixture. Now spoon the mixture into a buttered baking dish. Set the dish in a pan of hot water, and bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes, or until firm.

Minute Beef Stew Is in the Bag

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

A busy housewife who likes to serve her family home-cooked meals can streamline her cookery by preparing favorite entrees ahead of time, sealing them in plastic pouches for freezing and quick reheating in boiling water. There is a heat-sealer appliance which aids such a project. Whether this is used or not, always use durable plastic (mylar polyethylene) bags that are boilable. These come in single, double or family-size capacities. For those who do plan a meals-in-a-minute project, the Sears Home Economics Services suggests using only top-quality ingredients. Cooking and freezing of such things as soups or stews, meats or vegetables does not improve upon poor-quality ingredients. Concentrated cream soups and canned gravies, with their modified starches that are good binders for home-frozen foods, are a help. Also cut meat or vegetables into uniform pieces for even heating and fill pouches so they are only an inch thick. Such meals are ideal for families always on the run to after-school activities and adult community meetings during the week.

ties and adult community meetings during the week.

- MINUTE-MINDED BEEF STEW
- 1 cup flour
 - 2 teaspoons salt
 - 1 teaspoon chili powder
 - 1 teaspoon pepper
 - 3 pounds boneless beef chuck, cut into 1-inch cubes
 - 3 tablespoons shortening
 - 1 cup chopped onion
 - 1 envelope (1 ounce) brown gravy mix
 - 1 1/2 cups water
 - 1 can (10 ounces) tomatoes
 - 16 small white onions
 - 2 cups 1-inch carrot chunks

1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, undrained.

Combine flour, salt, chili powder and pepper. Dredge meat cubes in flour mixture. Brown meat slowly in Dutch oven in hot shortening, turning meat cubes to brown evenly on all sides. Sprinkle any remaining flour mixture over meat. Add chopped onion, gravy mix, water and tomatoes. Mix well. Cover. Cook in 325-degree oven until meat is almost tender, about 1 1/2 hours. Add whole onions, carrot chunks and mushrooms; mix carefully. Cover; cook until vegetables and meat are tender, about 45 minutes. Package in 2 serving portions. Seal in boil-in-bag, label and freeze.

To heat, drop sealed bag from freezer into uncovered pan of boiling water. Bring water to boil again. Reduce heat and boil gently until food is hot. Reheating time: 2 servings—20 minutes. Remove bag from water; open and serve. Makes 10 cups, 8 servings.

Hearty Squash Soup

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

Squashes are members of the gourd family and have such tasty relatives as pumpkins, watermelons and cucumbers. Native to the Western Hemisphere, squashes provided food for Indians summer and winter as they do now for all who like to eat them year-round. Squash, depending on the variety, is good baked, mashed, sauteed, steamed, scalloped. And it makes a very filling and delicious soup for a winter's meal.

- SQUASH SOUP
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 - 2 tablespoons flour
 - 1 quart milk
 - 2 cups cooked, mashed yellow winter squash

- 1/4 teaspoon ground white pepper
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1 tablespoon parsley flakes
- Melt butter; stir in flour. Blend in milk. Stir in squash, white pepper, salt and nutmeg. Cook and stir until slightly thickened. Serve hot, sprinkled with parsley flakes. Makes 6 portions.

Coffeecake Loaves Have Date-Nut Filling

COFFEECAKE LOAVES — They have a delicious filling of dates, nuts and an orange-sugar mixture.

By Cecily Brownstone
Associated Press Food Editor

Cooks who like to bake with yeast and who want really delicious coffeecake loaves might consider using the following recipe. These loaves are among the very best we've ever tried — delightful to serve fresh from the oven or, several days after they're baked, heated or toasted.

One hint: if you toast slices of this coffeecake do so under the broiler or in the oven part of a toaster-oven. If slices are put into regular toaster slots, the filling will ooze out.

DATE NUT LOAVES

6 1/2 cups (about) flour
2 packages instant blend dry yeast
1 cup milk
1 cup water
1/2 cup (1/4-pound stick) butter
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 eggs
2 teaspoons soft butter
1 cup cut-up pitted dates
1/4 cup chopped (medium-line) walnuts or pecans grated rind of 1 orange mixed with 1/2 cup sugar

2 tablespoons sugar

In large electric mixer bowl thoroughly stir together 2 1/2 cups of the flour and the undissolved yeast.

Into a 1-quart saucepan turn the milk, water, 1/2 cup butter, 1/2 cup sugar and salt; heat, stirring constantly, until warm (120 to 130 degrees). Pour into flour-yeast mixture. Add 1 whole egg and 1 egg yolk; reserve remaining egg white. Beat at low speed, scraping bowl, for 1/2 minute. Beat at high speed for 3 more minutes. With a spoon, gradually work in enough more flour to form a soft dough.

Turn out dough on a floured smooth surface; knead until smooth — 5 to 10 minutes. Place in greased bowl; turn to grease top.

Cover and let rise in a warm draft-free place until doubled — 45 to 60 minutes.

Punch down dough. Let rest 10 minutes. Divide into 2 parts. Turn out 1 part onto a floured pastry cloth. With a floured stockinet-covered rolling pin, roll to a 15 by 7 inch rectangle; spread with 1 teaspoon soft butter; sprinkle with 1/2 cup dates, 2 tablespoons walnuts and half the orange-sugar mixture. With flat side of spatula press filling into dough.

Beginning with 7-inch side, roll up to form a loaf; pinch together edges, sealing well. Place in a well-buttered loaf pan (9 by 5 by 3 inches), sealed edge down. Fill and shape second part of dough the same way.

Cover and let rise for 20 minutes. To allow steam to escape, with cake tester or metal skewer, make holes to bottom of pans, 1 inch apart, over tops of loaves. With a razor blade make 3 diagonal slashes 1/2 inch deep across top of each loaf. Brush loaves with reserved egg white; sprinkle with the 2 tablespoons sugar. Let rise as previously until doubled — about 20 minutes.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven for 35 to 45 minutes. After 20 minutes place a sheet of foil over loaves to prevent over-browning. Turn out loaves on wire racks; turn right side up; cool.

Makes two 2-pound loaves.

Frankfurter on a Stick

Frankfurters with a crunchy, spicy cornmeal coating lures youths.

By AILEEN CLAIRE
NEA Food Editor

A meal-on-a-stick for week-end lunches at home is a change of pace from cheese or tuna sandwiches. These are frankfurters dipped in a cornmeal batter, skewered with a cooking fork or wooden skewer to cook. Touches of instant minced onion, dry mustard and garlic powder add a mild zip to the crust.

SPIKY CORN DOGS

2/3 cup enriched cornmeal
1/3 cup all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon instant minced onion
1 egg, beaten
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1/2 cup milk

1 1-pound package wieners
Chili sauce

Combine cornmeal, flour, salt, garlic powder, mustard and onion. Add egg, oil and milk. Coat each wiener with flour and insert onto tines of cooking fork or wooden skewer. Dip into cornmeal mixture, coating all sides. Fry a few at a time in hot, deep fat (375 degrees) until golden brown. Serve hot with chili sauce. Makes 8 to 10.

Add the softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Stir in celery and lemon juice. Pour into 5 one-half cup individual molds or custard cups; chill until set. Loosen edges with a small metal spatula; dip in hot water and unmold. Garnish with lettuce and, if desired, serve with mayonnaise. Makes 5 servings.

Noncompliance in Price Posting Is Widespread

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nationwide spot checks by the Internal Revenue Service have disclosed widespread noncompliance with government regulations requiring posting of freeze-period ceiling prices.

"We're not satisfied," said Jerry Portney, deputy IRS assistant for stabilization. "They've got until the 17th to shape up."

Jan. 17 is the date set by the Price Commission for final compliance with the posting requirements. But businesses are supposed to be complying now, unless given the extra grace period by IRS.

On another Phase 2 front, the Cost of Living Council Wednesday ordered IRS to investigate whether some food and clothing prices have gone up in violation of price controls.

The investigation stems from the latest Consumer Price Index which showed higher prices for most meats, and a 2.5-percent increase in clothing prices during the three months covered by the freeze. The freeze on wages and prices ended

Nov. 14. The spot checks will determine whether stores are exceeding Phase 2 regulations that allow prices to rise only as they reflect increased costs, the council said.

More than 6,000 IRS agents made spot checks of retail outlets beginning last Monday as the requirements for posting freeze-period ceiling prices went into effect.

In New York City, checks showed 72 per cent of stores in Brooklyn were not in compliance, and 60 per cent non-compliance in Manhattan.

According to the IRS sampling, the state of Virginia showed a 40 per cent noncompliance, the Southeastern United States 45 per cent, Nebraska 50 per cent, Illinois 45 per cent, and New Mexico 65 per cent.

"They were simply not aware of the regulation," Portney said. "They said, 'We're glad you came in. Now we know what the rules are.'"

Portney said in each case store owners were advised of the regulations, given a sheet of paper explaining them, and were told that agents would be back to check them before Jan. 17.

He said the IRS will refrain from citing stores for violating the rules until Jan. 7. "After Jan. 17, there's no more grace," he said.

Under the Price Commission's rules, retail stores with annual sales of $100,000 or more are required to meet the posting regulations in each department of their stores. In addition, they must post ceiling prices on all nonexempt food items.

Regulations for stores with annual sales under $100,000 require prominent posting of freeze-period prices on the 40 top items.

The IRS is insisting on prominent posting of prices, saying that the price lists must be where customers can see them without the aid of a store employee.

The law provides a civil penalty of up to $2,500 for violations of price regulations. But it is doubtful the government will seek such a fine except in the most-extreme cases.

Prison Farm Income Is $1.7 Million

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Correction Department said Wednesday that 1971 income from farm operations at the prisons totaled $1,793,499, the highest total in recent years.

The figures, based on a calendar year, were in a report by the Agriculture Division of the department.

Income in the 1970 fiscal year was $1,246,472 and in the 1969 fiscal year income amounted to $1,076,343.

The 1971 total was below that in 1962 and 1963, however.

Hubert C. Christopher, farm administrator for the department, prepared the report, which said the income included 73,450 worth of goods consumed by inmates.

The figure listed for 1969 did not include goods consumed in prison.

Correction Commissioner Terrell Don Hutto said the institution of a liberalized "good time" policy improved inmate morale and that this contributed to productivity in a good crop year.

The prisons include about 18,000 acres at Cummins Prison Farm, where inmates do the farming, and about 4,700 at the Tucker Intermediate Reformatory, where the farm property was under a lease arrangement in 1971.

Cotton and rice were the largest income-producers in the prison farm operations in 1971 with cotton accounting for $343,000 of the income and rice accounting for $305,196.

Christopher said endeavors planned for the farms included installation of a cheese-making process at the dairy, investigating the possibility of adding a peanut butter producing operation, and the raising of turkeys.

Hexachlorophene All Boiled Down It Is Sprays Banned Good Deeds That Count

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration has proposed a ban on hexachlorophene in feminine hygiene sprays, a $53-million annual business, until it can determine if the chemical is safe and effective.

The proposal, one of several related ones published today in the Federal Register, reflects the government's growing concern over whether several germ fighters may be posing a human health hazard. Interested parties have 60 days to comment.

The FDA said it does not know whether hexachlorophene (HCP) is harmful, let alone what the human tolerance level may be, nor the number of sources which a consumer may be exposed to.

"Until we have such information," FDA Commissioner Charles C. Edwards said, "the only prudent course is to reduce the total human exposure to HCP."

If adopted, the program would ban use of hexachlorophene in all cosmetics, restrict skin cleansers containing more than .75 per cent to prescription and hospital use, require cautionary labels on cleansers containing lesser amounts, and require premarket testing of all drugs and cosmetics containing the chemical.

The cleansers phisoHex and HyperHaze would be among products limited to hospital or prescription use.

A month ago, the FDA proposed warning labels for those and other products containing three per cent hexachlorophene solutions, warned against their use for total body bathing and recommended a total rinse after use.

That action was prompted by studies suggesting that newborn babies and burn patients absorb measurable amounts of hexachlorophene into their bloodstreams, and that rats injected with the chemical and infant monkeys bathed with it develop brain lesions.

Sterling Drug Inc., whose Winthrop Laboratories division makes phisoHex, issued a statement charging the FDA with "premature and illogical" action in attempting to further restrict use of its product.

The statement issued in Washington by the company's public-relations representative said the FDA's warning in December resulted in some hospitals discontinuing use of phisoHex.

"Significantly, we have been informed that epidemics of staphylococcal infections have broken out in the nurseries of four hospitals which discontinued the use of phisoHex," the statement said. "The inference to be drawn is obvious."

The statement did not elaborate and public relations agent Gordon L. Smith said the company would not disclose the names and locations of the hospitals mentioned.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Hundreds of people can look forward to better things in 1972 thanks to Americans who used the holiday season to show that Christmas means a lot more than tinsel and trees.

Accompanying the news of civil war in Pakistan, bombings in Northern Ireland and the ups and downs of the economy, were reports such as these:

—Harry L. Jones, a Birmingham, Ala., policeman used his last $6 to buy groceries for a needy family. His good deed was reported and he got letters from around the world. Jones received more than $3,000 which he turned over to charity, commenting: "You can say what you want about the commercialism of Christmas nowadays, but ... there's still a lot of love and good will toward men around."

—An 8-year-old Manhattan boy wrote two letters to Santa Claus asking for a wheelchair for his brother, who was stricken at birth with cerebral palsy. The second letter wound up in a Seattle post office and was reprinted in the Seattle Times. Several people offered to buy the wheelchair.

—Off-duty police officers in Lynwood, Calif., teamed up to form a Santa Patrol, giving out small, candy-filled socks to children. The socks carried a message: "The policeman is the children's friend. Go to him when you need help. Merry Christmas."

—A family in Florence, Mass., skipped the usual exchange of Christmas presents and instead sent gifts and supplies to 240 orphans in South Vietnam. The Lucien Pepins took the action after their son, Spec. 4 Bernard A. Pepin, wrote them of the needs at an orphanage in Vietnam where he is stationed.

—Three young parcel post deliverymen in Seattle, Wash., volunteered to pick up packages from area families of POWs and speed them directly to Seattle-Tacoma International Airport for shipment to the departure point. They even offered to pay the postage.

—Employees of a city department in Poplar Bluff, Mo., collected $146.51 for a Christmas party. Then they learned of a man who needed a kidney transplant and expensive treatment. They turned over their party collection to a fund set up by the city newspaper, the Daily American Republic.

Good news isn't just for the holidays, of course. It's something that goes on all year long, in big cities and small towns, created by large groups and by individuals.

Take the case of Jean Logan. In the course of her job with a Washington State public assistance agency, she discovered that an elderly woman with eight days to wait for her Social Security check had only half a stick of margarine left in the refrigerator.

She learned that many of the people she helped just couldn't make ends meet. So she took the family pick-up truck, painted a sign reading, "Help us help your neighbors" and, with the aid of eight youngsters, started collecting. In the first three months, she got enough food to feed more than 3,000 families.

One-Fourth of Mankind

For arts and manner of government I think no Kingdom in the world comparable to it. —Peter Munday, first Englishman to visit China

Two and three centuries after Columbus, Europe finally began discovering China. Distance lent enchantment, but so, too, did the many products merchants were bringing back: Wallpaper, lacquered furniture, tea, objets-d'art and, especially, porcelain—"china." Chinese themes—"chinoiserie"—influenced rococo architecture and gardens.

Reading the glowing accounts sent by the Jesuits, men like Voltaire and Leibnitz praised China's government as the best ever conceived, one in which philosophers, if they were not kings, were at least the king's officials. Rationalists saw in Confucianist China proof that morality needed no priests or dogmas.

While it lasted, Sinophilia provided a cultural and humanistic impetus in Europe. When it ended, it was replaced by growing contempt for the "heathen Chinese."

In the beginning, though, contempt was a monopoly of China. Unfortunately, the behavior of some of those who went there did little to dispel Chinese xenophobia.

The Portuguese had been granted a concession at Macao in 1557. They were followed in the next century by the rival Dutch and English. By the 18th century, the latter had attained a monopoly of the China trade. The first American ship arrived in 1784.

Unable to keep the "foreign devils" out entirely, the Chinese tried their time-honored tactic of playing one barbarian off against another. Trade was restricted to the port of Canton and all dealings had to be handled through the Co-hong, a monopolistic association of merchants, who occupied nearly the bottom of the

Everything Is Adorned Beyond Need, Value

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

We live in a throwaway civilization. Everything from a bad book to a good woman—and vice versa—is gift-wrapped and adorned beyond its need or value. Most of this gaudy packaging is unnecessary and merely adds to the debris of our lives and the pollution of our environment. If the trend goes much further, the time may come when most of us will start saving the wrappings on our packages—and throw the contents away.

The reason executives keep their shoes well shined is that scuffed shoes don't look so well on a desk.

Thirty million Americans on a diet spend more time worrying about their food than all the untold millions of hungry people in India and China. But they don't get as skinny.

Some misguided people are still trying to save the breaded veal cutlet from extinction. The claim is even made that a breaded veal cutlet, taped over a black eye, will help it to heal faster. This may be true of a piece of raw beefsteak, but definitely it is not true of a breaded veal cutlet, which would only inflame the black eye, not cure it.

Julie Andrews isn't making enough films lately. Why not, if the flicker industry is really trying to return to the making of good wholesome family movies? "The Sound of Music," starring Julie, made more money than any other film in history.

There's one sure thing about having interesting conversations. You'll never have one in a home in which the husband and wife have "His" and "Her" towels hanging in the bathroom.

The United States may now have 10,000 to 15,000 inhabitants who are 100 years of age or over. Each has his own recipe for how to live longer. The best I ever heard was given by a lady centenarian in New Jersey who said: "Whenever I had a crisis in my life, I met it by going to bed until I felt better." Maybe everyone wouldn't live longer if he followed this formula, but if everyone simply slept one more hour every night he'd enjoy more the years he does have on earth.

China a la Mode

Another Shock for George III

Chinese social scale. Government officials all along the line extracted their "squeeze" from the profits.

In 1792, Britain sent Lord Macartney as head of its first diplomatic mission to China. After much dispute over the question of kow-towing—literally knocking one's head against the floor nine times before the emperor—he was permitted to present his request.

In his answer to George III, the Emperor Ch'ien Lung noted the king's "humble desire to partake of the benefits of our civilization" but informed him nevertheless that "our Celestial Empire possesses all things in prolific abundance . . . (We) have no need for your country's merchandise."

It was not a reply calculated to win friends and influence monarchs.

Gremillion Is Freed on Bond

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — State Atty. Gen. Jack P. F. Gremillion, sentenced to three years in prison on federal perjury charges, was free today on a personal recognizance bond pending appeal.

A federal district court jury found the 56-year-old Gremillion guilty last Sept. 25 on a five-count charge that he lied when he testified under oath before a federal grand jury about his financial connections with the now defunct Louisiana Loan and Thrift Corp.

U.S. District Court Judge Fred J. Cassibby Wednesday sentenced Gremillion to three years on each count with the sentences to run concurrently. The maximum punishment was a fine of $10,000 and five years on each count.

Defense attorney F. Irwin Dymond said an appeal from the conviction and sentence would be made to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

The trial was the second one in federal court for Gremillion in connection with LL&T. He and two other men were acquitted May 19, 1971, of charges

Americans Are Aiding Returning War Vets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the unpopularity of the Vietnam War "has rubbed off, to some extent, on those who fought it," a nationwide poll shows Americans are doing a lot to help returning veterans. But most ex-servicemen polled didn't feel they were owed any special treatment or thanks.

"The returning servicemen seem less preoccupied with the way things should be, and are content to accept things as given and do the best they can to adjust to civilian life," the 270-page report said.

The poll was undertaken by Louis Harris and Associates Inc. for the Veterans Administration at a cost of $183,000.

The attitude of nonwhites and those who didn't graduate from high school was different from the total view. "Among these servicemen there is a real feeling society owes them something for their efforts," the report said.

While 62 per cent of all veterans polled said readjusting to civilian life was not more difficult than most people imagined, 53 per cent of the nonwhites felt the opposite.

But 58 per cent of all veterans agreed "people at home just didn't understand what you have been through in the armed forces." Among nonwhites the figure was 72 per cent.

VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson told a news conference Wednesday he is pleased that the survey gave the VA "a good report card in most aspects" but the real worth of the survey lies in the future.

"It provides a scientific blueprint which can be of great assistance to everyone involved in and dedicated to the constant improvement and strengthening of our national program for veterans," he said.

Harris took the poll between Aug. 15 and Aug. 30. His organization conducted personal interviews in 1,490 households without Vietnam-era veterans, 2,003 veterans recently separated from service and 789 business executives representing prospective employers.

Noting that 48 per cent of the public and employers say the reception given veterans today is worse than that extended returning servicemen from earlier wars, the survey said:

"The whole question of treatment of returning veterans is a serious burden on the conscience of the American public."

First Lady on African Tour

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — First Lady Pat Nixon, getting the jump on her husband, says the President has definitely decided to run for re-election.

Mrs. Nixon made the disclosure Wednesday to reporters after her arrival for the second stop of her three-nation West African tour.

Nixon said in a television interview last Sunday that he would announce his decision before Jan. 14, two days before the deadline for candidacies in the New Hampshire primary.

Mrs. Nixon said her husband's re-election chances "are very good." Asked what the campaign might be like, she replied:

"It's going to be whatever type the other side makes it. It might be easy and it might be very difficult because we don't know who's the candidate on the other side yet."

Mrs. Nixon flew to Ghana from Liberia, where she headed the U.S. delegation to the inauguration of President William Tolbert. Prime Minister Kofia Busia praised her at a dinner in her honor Wednesday night for "excellence as an ambassador of good will."

Mrs. Nixon spent much of the day fielding questions about American aid to Ghana, which was impoverished by the spending of President Kwame Nkrumah, now an exile in Guinea. Ghana received $246 million in U.S. aid during the 1971 fiscal year, and Mrs. Nixon commented at one point: "My husband is for an aid program and his administration is going to be working with Congress to get a decent bill."

Busia, who met with Nixon in Washington last November, said Mrs. Nixon's visit came at "a time when we need it most," since his country is facing "bold and difficult steps" to put its economy in order.

Ex-Inmate Sues State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A claim for $10,000 has been filed with the state Claims Commission by an ex-inmate of Cummins Prison Farm who contends his eyesight was impaired in prison.

Charles P. Ouletta of North Little Rock filed the claim stating that the impairment resulted when he was struck in the eye with a cotton stalk and was denied medical attention for 10 days.

He was released this year after serving a term for forgery and uttering in connection with loans obtained under a fictitious name from a Benton bank to finance home construction by Ouletta.

Inmate Guards No Longer Armed

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Jack Grasinger, administrative assistant to Correction Commissioner Terrell Don Hutto, said Wednesday that inmates serving in the fields of Cummins Prison Farm and Tucker Intermediate Reformatory no longer are armed.

A $231,000 grant under the federal Emergency Employment Act enabled the Correction Department to reduce the number of armed inmates by replacing them with paid civilian employees, he said.

The department was allotted 48 positions under the act. Thirty-eight have been filled, a spokesman said.

Grasinger said, however, that inmates who serve as guards in towers at Cummins still were armed. He said 18 served as guards in Cummins towers and two at Tucker.

U.S. District Court Judge J. Smith Henley condemned the trusty system in his Feb. 18, 1970, ruling that the prisons were being operated unconstitutionally.

Parents Opposed

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — A fourth grade girl has been transferred to another class following her parent's complaint that her teacher had been stressing women's liberation.

Vikki Howe was removed from the fourth grade class taught by Pat Jimmerson at Schenk Elementary School because her mother, Mrs. Howard Howe, said she and her husband were concerned about the women's lib issue.

The class had allegedly discussed the possibility of writing to newspapers and suggesting that the "women's section" be called the "family section" instead.

Explorer Scouts Hold Annual Observance

On Thursday, Dec. 23, Boy Scout Troop 92 held its annual Christmas party at the Presbyterian Church. The boys exchanged gifts after the opening prayer by Rev. Jim Sewell. Pictures 1 and 2 show the boys and their families singing Christmas Carols accompanied by
